haha it's great being a person that I'm sure no one remembers because who even knows if anyone I knew is still here.

Doubt any of you guys know me but hi I'm not dead. This may be the last time I ever post on the forum because eventually one day I'm gonna forget to come back or just not know what to say or something, so I thought I should say this in case I haven't said it before.

This place changed my life. I'm a much more friendly and brave person because of the forums and they helped me find out who I am as a person. In a way, the forums helped me not need the forums anymore, which is a kind of sad paradox. I am very slow to consider people friends (this is not anything against the people I don't quite consider myself friends with, more just that I am a cautious person), but even so there are quite a few of you who I adopted.

I doubt you'll see this, but Derpsloth, you helped me more than you'll ever know. You were nice to me, offered to be my friend (or maybe I offered to be yours, I can't remember), but you were someone I could always talk to or say hi to or look forward to chatting with. Lykaina, it was nice having a private RP with you even if I always took days or even weeks to reply to stuff. Spring, you were a role model to me. Dauntless/Vertigo/Katniss/whoever you now are, you are a beautiful angel who has blessed the forums with your presence and majesticness, and Future, you are someone who I always admired and was a tiny bit too scared of to consider my friend. Ghost, you were always really nice, and since I'm 97% sure you'll never see this, I'll admit that I kind of liked you a tiny bit at one point and I don't think you even knew I existed which is a little sad. (I'm forcing myself to say this because I'm trying to make myself not overthink stuff as much and I'm hoping the forums can help me improve myself one last time)

I'm sure there are soooo many amazing and wonderful people I'm forgetting, but just know that you guys have made a difference to me. Even if you think that you have done nothing in the world, you've made a difference to me, even if you don't know it, even if you don't remember me.

Thank you all, from the bottom of my heart

now I have to go do homework on a freaking saturday night because high school sucks folks

Also if someone new has the nickname Spirit please tell me I wanna say hi or something

I'm really glad this post made it through, I was scared I was going to have made this long post and spent forever on it and then have it be lost in moderation
